Jean-Michel Basquiat was an artist who came to fame in the 1980's - starting off as a graffiti artist in the 70's he shifted to paintings in the 80s. Whilst a lot of his work explored social commentary a reoccurring image in his work was that of a dinosaur wearing a crown. Considered one of Basquiat's most iconic works it is thought to symbolise humankind's evolution. We thought it would be fun to create our own version! Start by sketching out the outline of your dinosaur

Once you are happy with the outline you can start adding in details like eyes, spikes and of course the crown!

There you have it your very own “Basquiat inspired work”!
