Art Focus: Henri Rousseau

Taking inspiration from Henri Rousseau's most famous artwork "Surprised!" or "Tiger in a Tropical Storm" why not create your own tiger in any style you like!

Tools and Materials:

- Paper
- Pencil
- Colouring Pencils

Henri Rousseau was an “outsider artist” meaning he had no formal training and was self-taught only really coming to painting seriously later in life in his forties. “Surprised!” is his most famous painting and then one that gave him the most recognition in his field from artists and critics alike. It is currently houses in the National Gallery in London as part of it’s permanent collection - well worth a visit! Inspired by his tiger lets create our now based on the painting but in our style! Start by sketching all the elements out and then colour it in

There you have it your very own
