Aurora Borealis

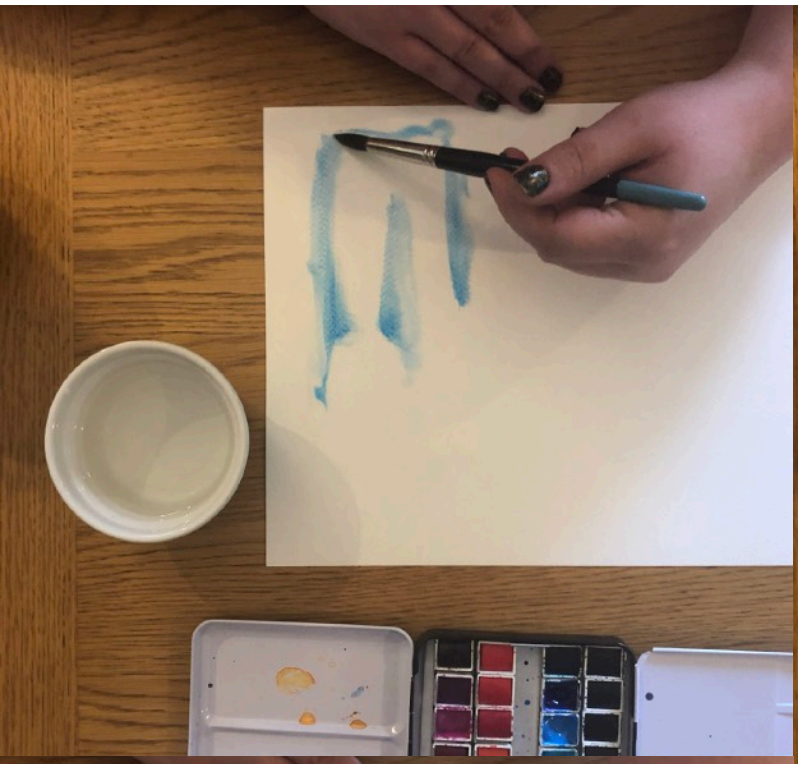

The Aurora Borealis also known as the Northern Lights is a natural phenomenon that creates vibrant colours that look like they dance across the sky - why not create work inspired by this!

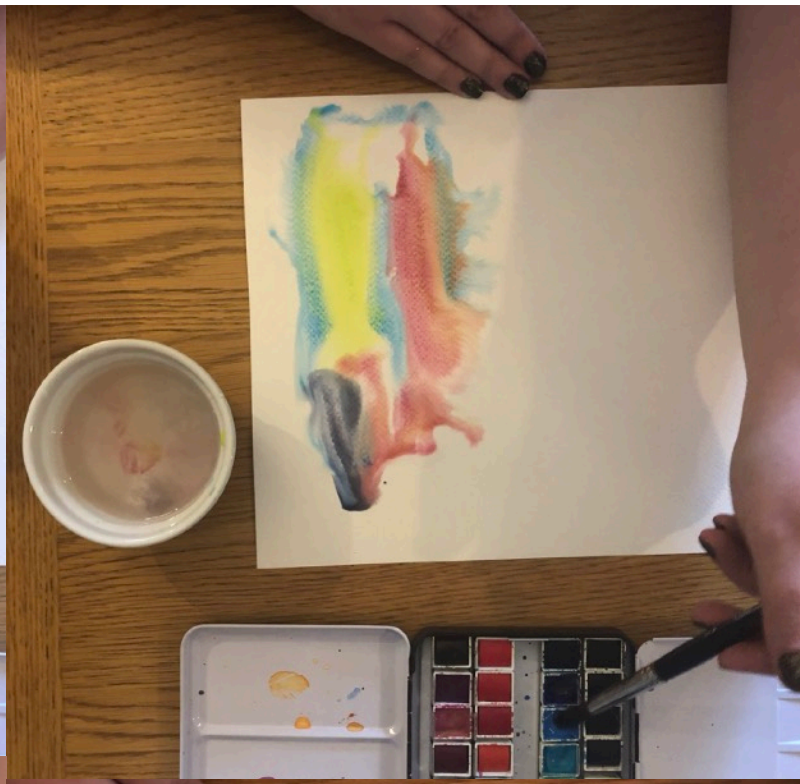

Tools and Materials:

- Watercolour Paper
- Paintbrushes (smaller one for finer details)
- Water
- Watercolours

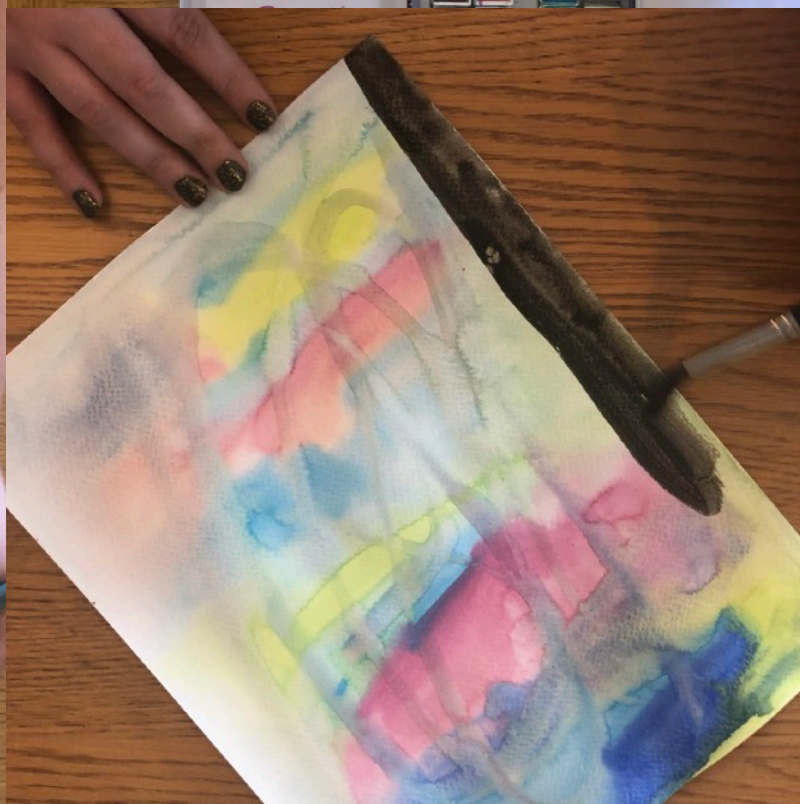

First of all you want to create the background of the Aurora Borealis to place your silhouette on top of it - think what colours you want to use, the Aurora Borealis is usually greens and blues but they can also feature pinks and violets depending what they interact with - to get a good cover of colour you can wet the paper and then add the colour so it blends more - when dry add the black for a wintery scene like the countryside in Norway perhaps!

There you have it your own “Aurora Borealis” inspired work!

Here is another we made to inspire you!
