Emotion Drawing

Thinking about colour and emotion and how we represent them why not create your own “Emotion Drawing”!

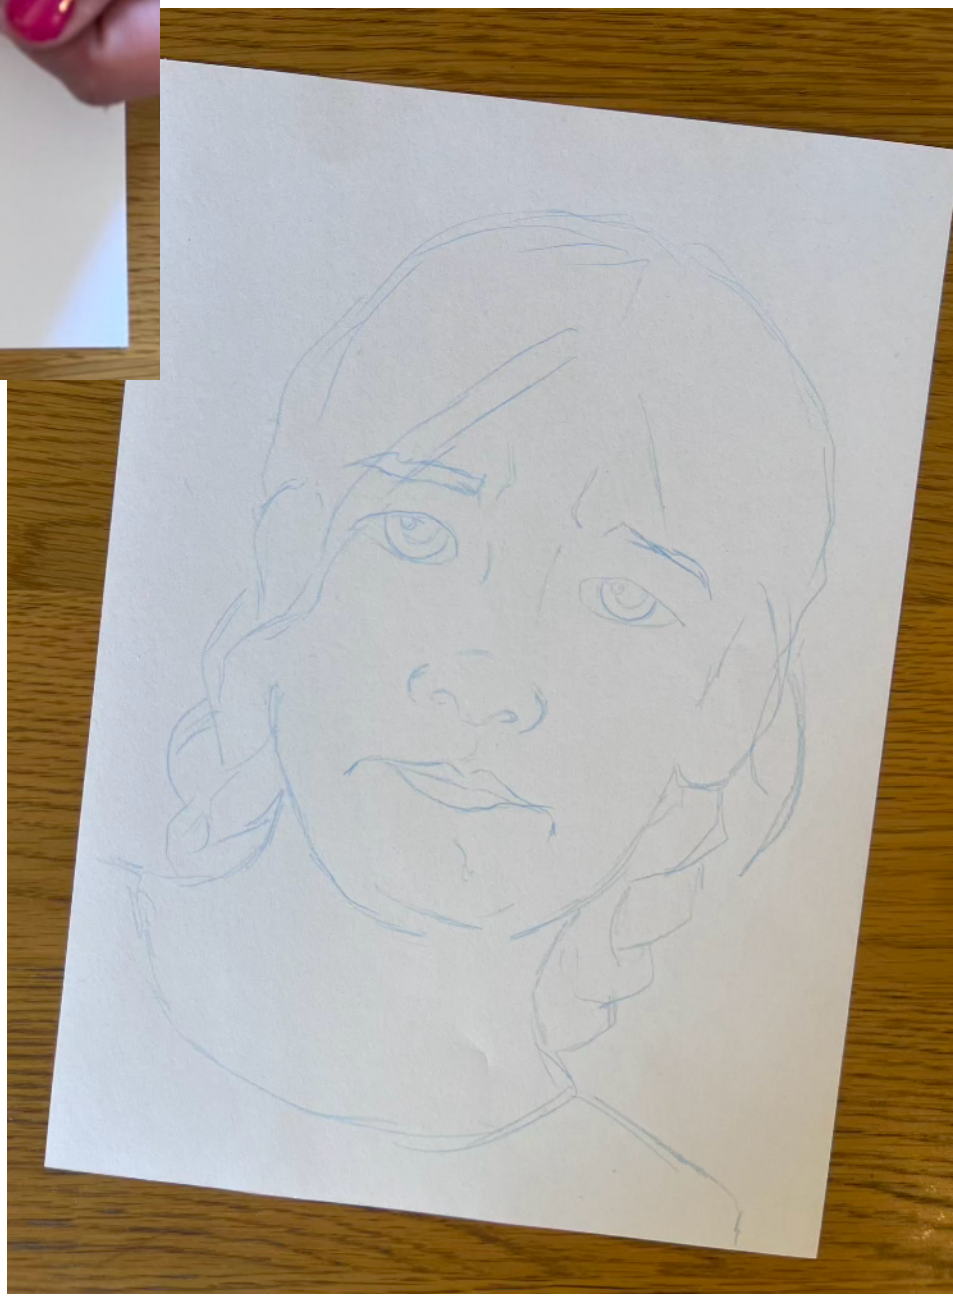

Tools and Materials:

- Paper
- Colouring Pencils (different shades in the colour for the emotion you want)

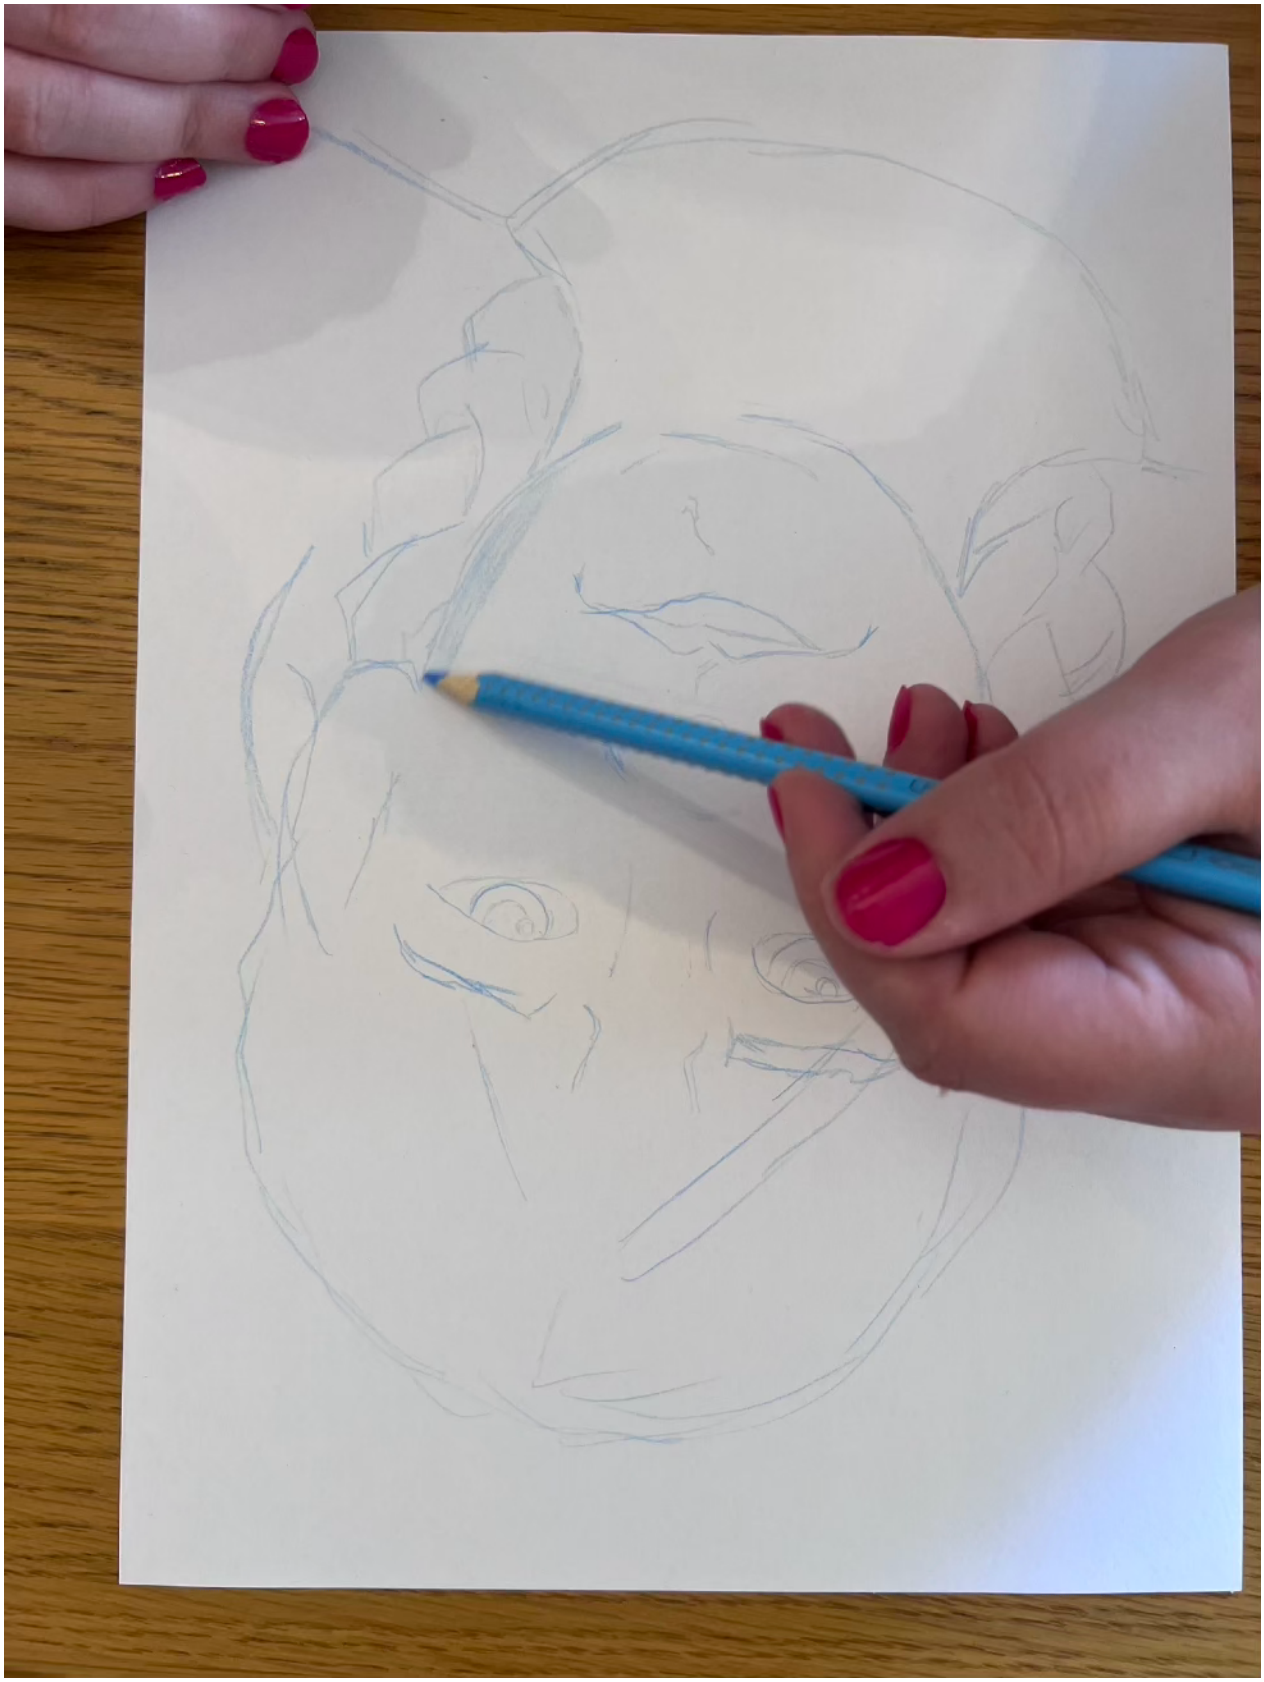

Think about what emotion you want to draw and what colour that might be, we went for “Sadness” so thought blue was a good colour to show this! Take one of the lightest blues to sketch out the face, don’t worry if there are lines where you don’t want them because you can colour over them later!

Once you are happy with the sketch start colouring it in you can use different blues to represent shading, skin tone, clothes etc to differentiate it. You can also use crosshatching which is where you colour in 2 different directions to add texture

There you have it your very own “Emotion Drawing”!

Here are some others we made to inspire you!
