Art Focus: Frank Bowling

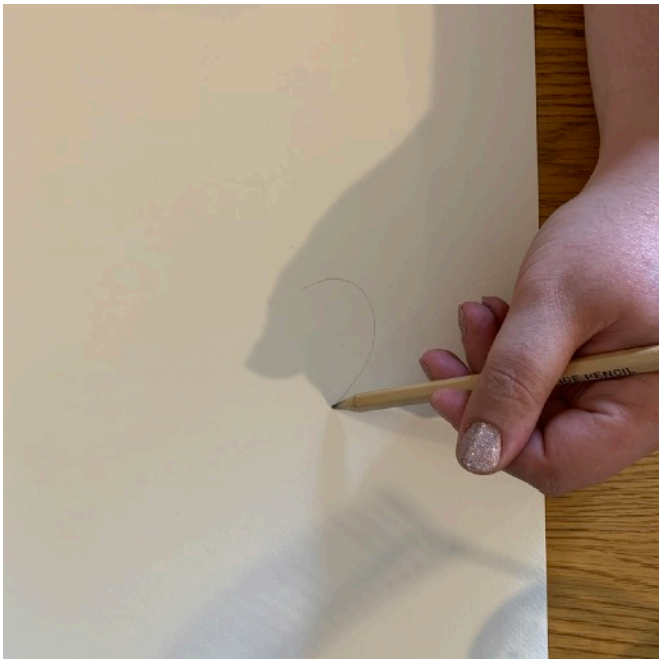

Taking inspiration from Frank Bowling why not create your own work influenced by his abstract paintings with figures hidden underneath!

Tools and Materials:

- Thick Paper
- Pencil
- Paintbrush
- Watercolours
- Water

So Frank Bowling is a Guyana-born British Artist who recently (2019) had a solo show at Tate Britain. Taking inspiration from his work we thought it would be fun to create work like some of his, where he would hide maps or text under large abstract paintings bursting with colour! For this project we can lightly draw whatever it is you want - the possibilities are endless! And then once you have drawn it we can hide it under the paint - the point is it doesn't really matter if it's visible or not as the "audience" don't have to see everything!

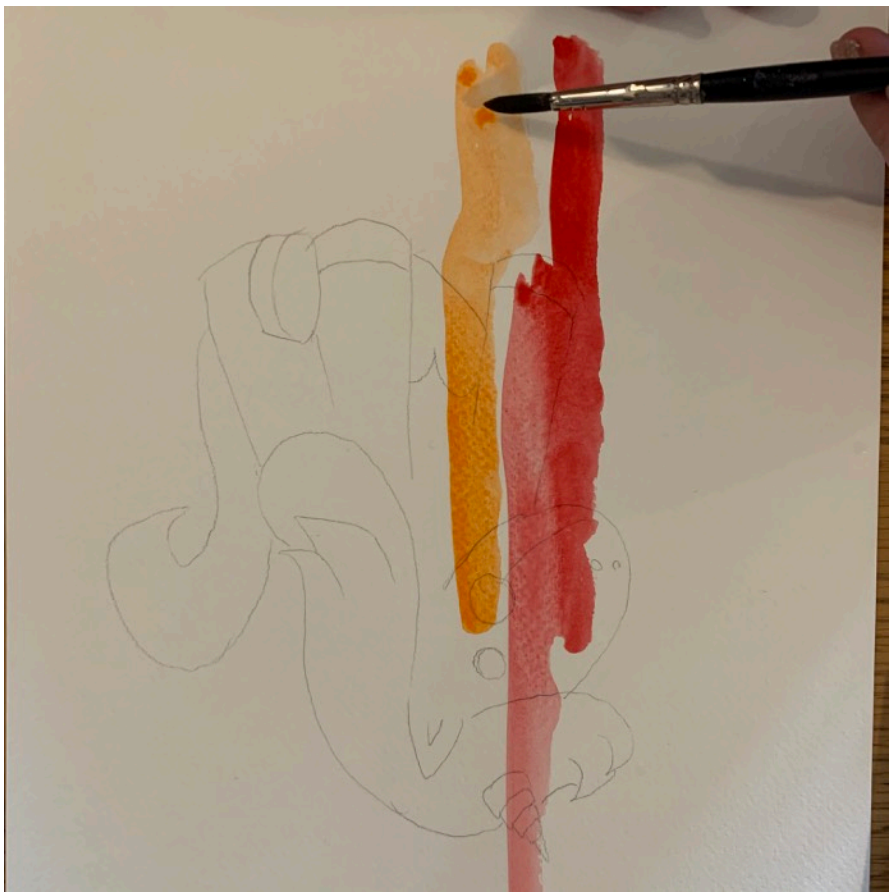

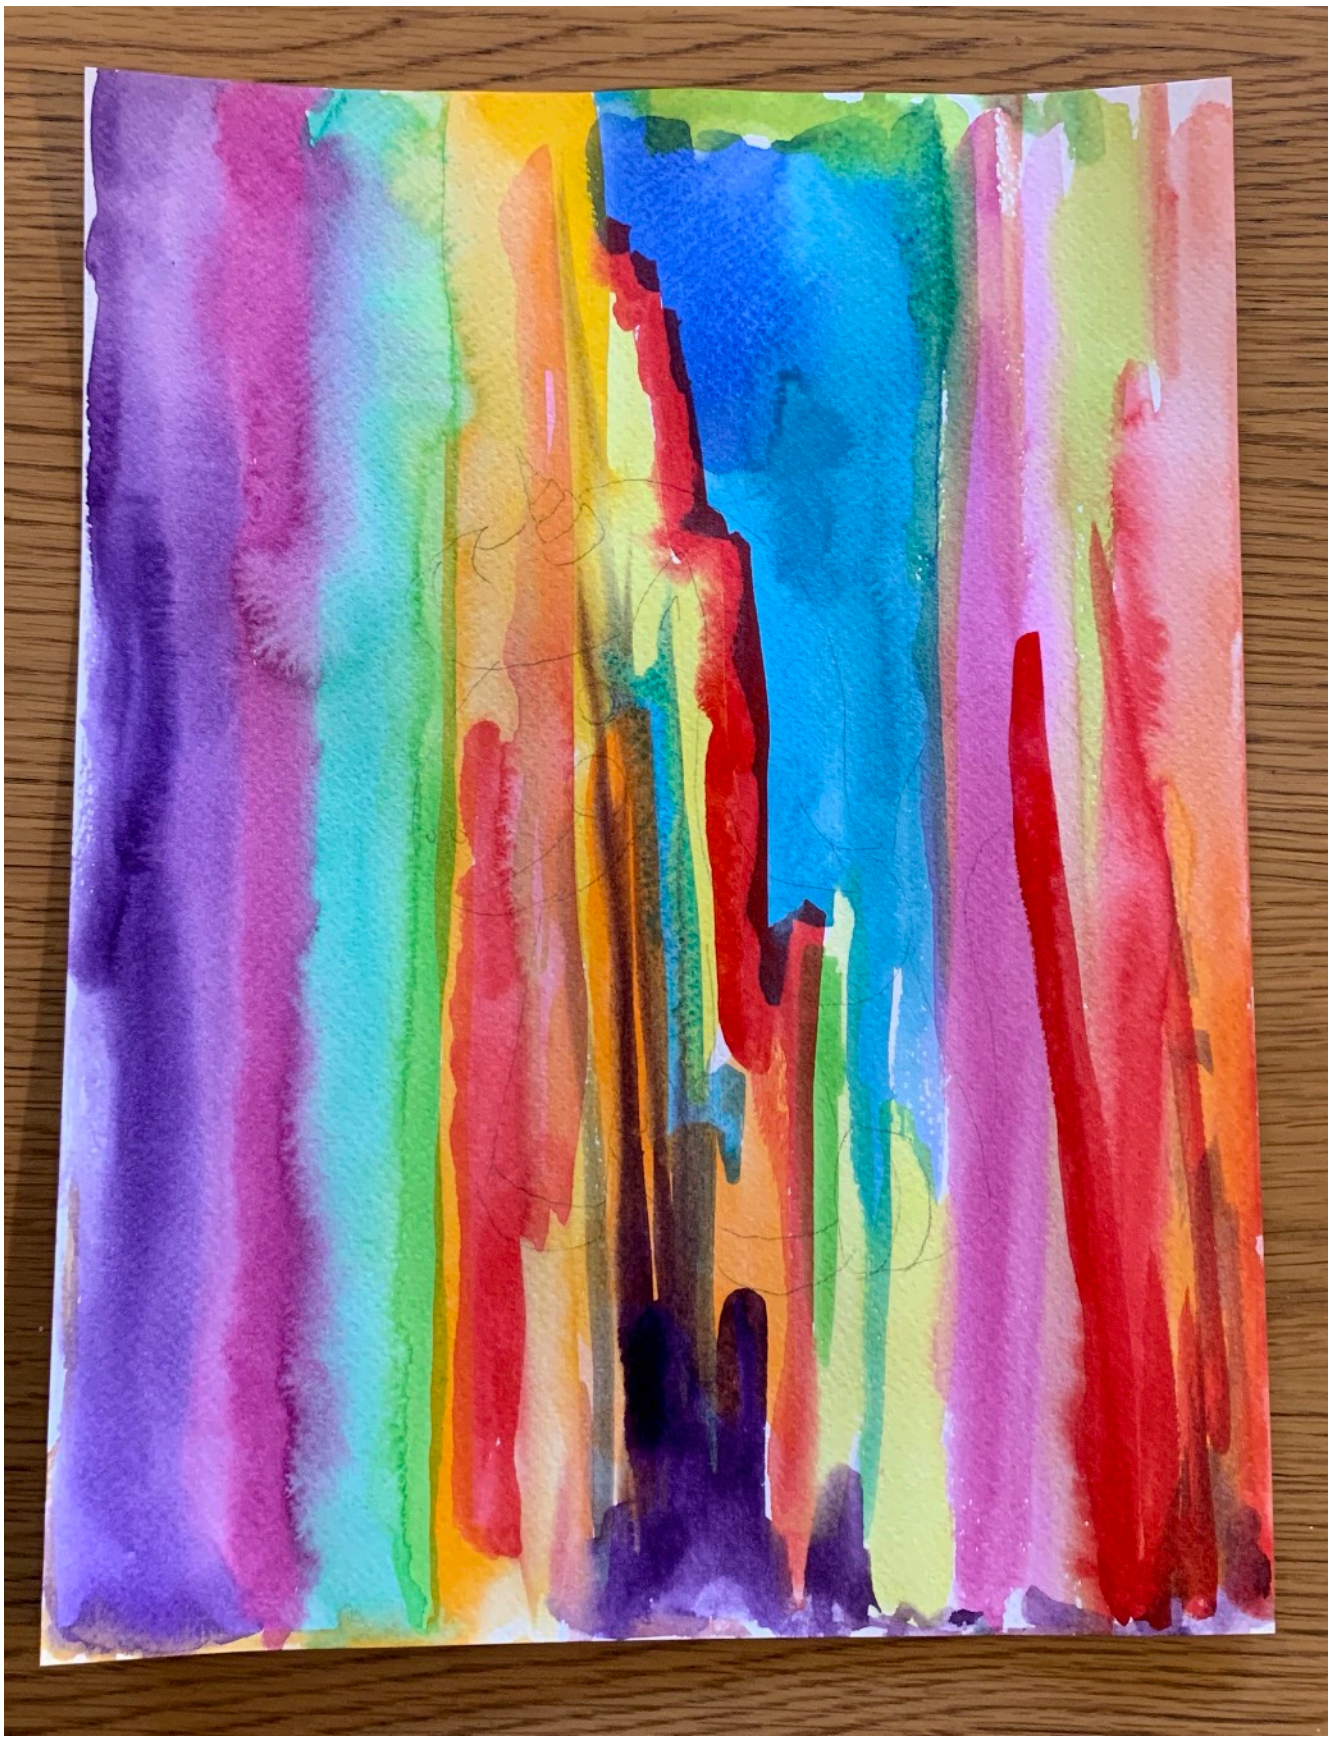

Once you are happy with your drawing you can start to paint it - Frank Bowling's work mainly consists of stripes so we wanted to echo this in our creations

And there you have it your very own Frank Bowling inspired artwork!

Here is another we created to inspire you - can you make out what is underneath the paint?
