Monochromatic Pointillism

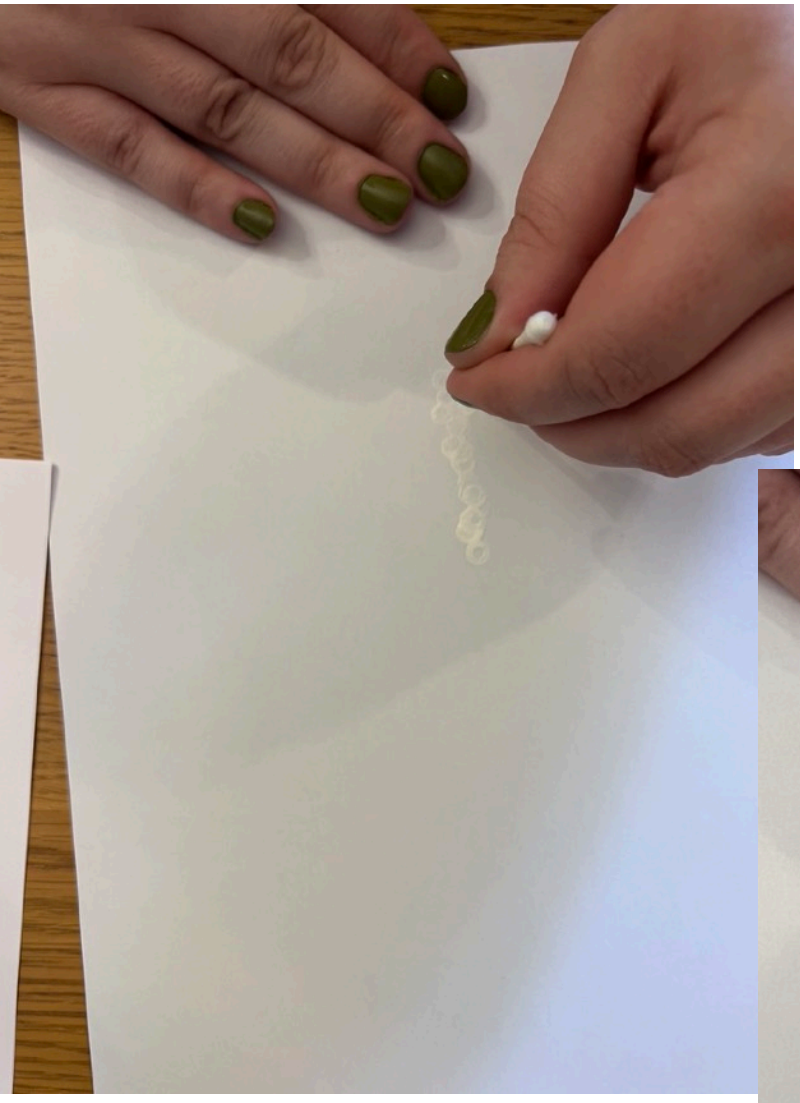

Using a simple colour scheme of black and white why not create your own monochromatic pointillistic (dots) painting

Tools and Materials:

- Paper
- Paint (Black & White)
- Cotton Buds
- Paper or a Palette to put your paint on

So for easiness we took some printer paper and folded it over as a makeshift palette as it means it can go straight in the bin after. We used cotton buds to have a uniform surface for the dots, if you don’t have any you could use he end of an older pencil that you don’t mind getting painty. With using the black and white you will be creating grey which is fine - you want to do that! Think about what you want to make and get dotting!

There you have it your very own
“Monochromatic Pointillism Piece”!

Here is another we made to inspire you!
