Movement Drawing

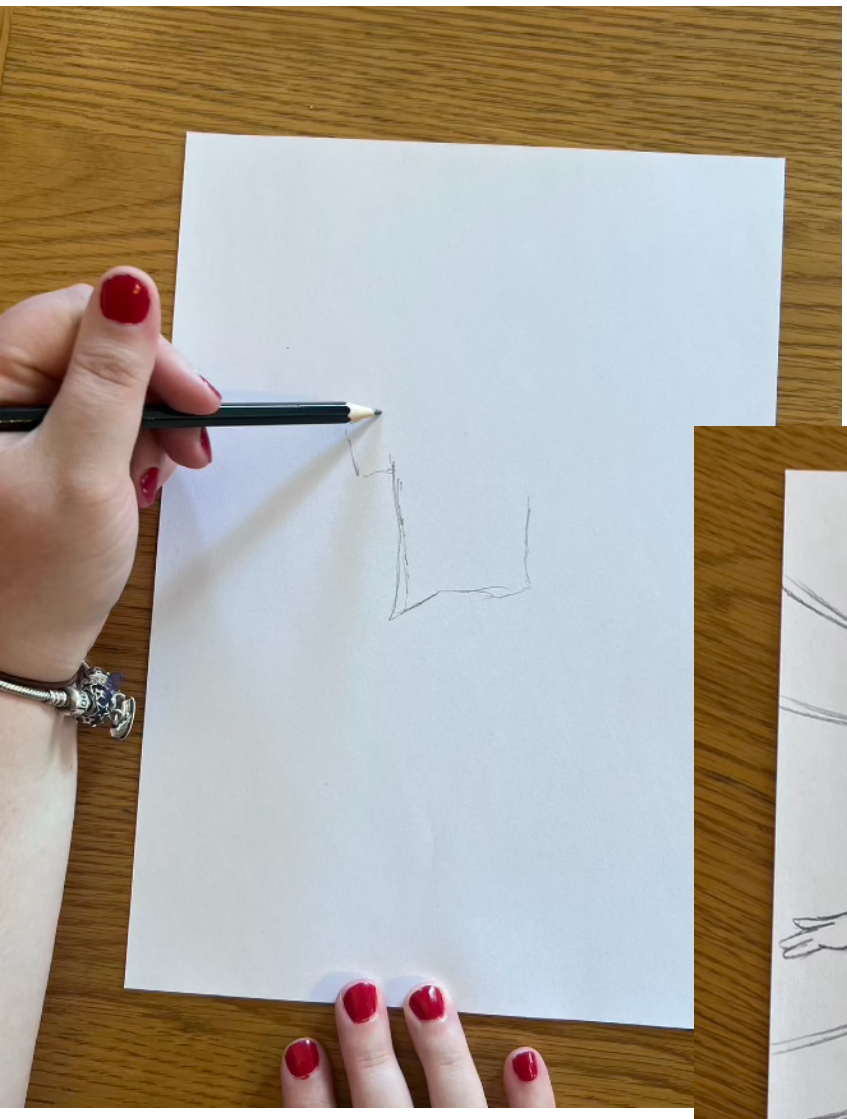

Simple drawing exercise to represent how to show movement through a static image - influenced by comic book and animation styles

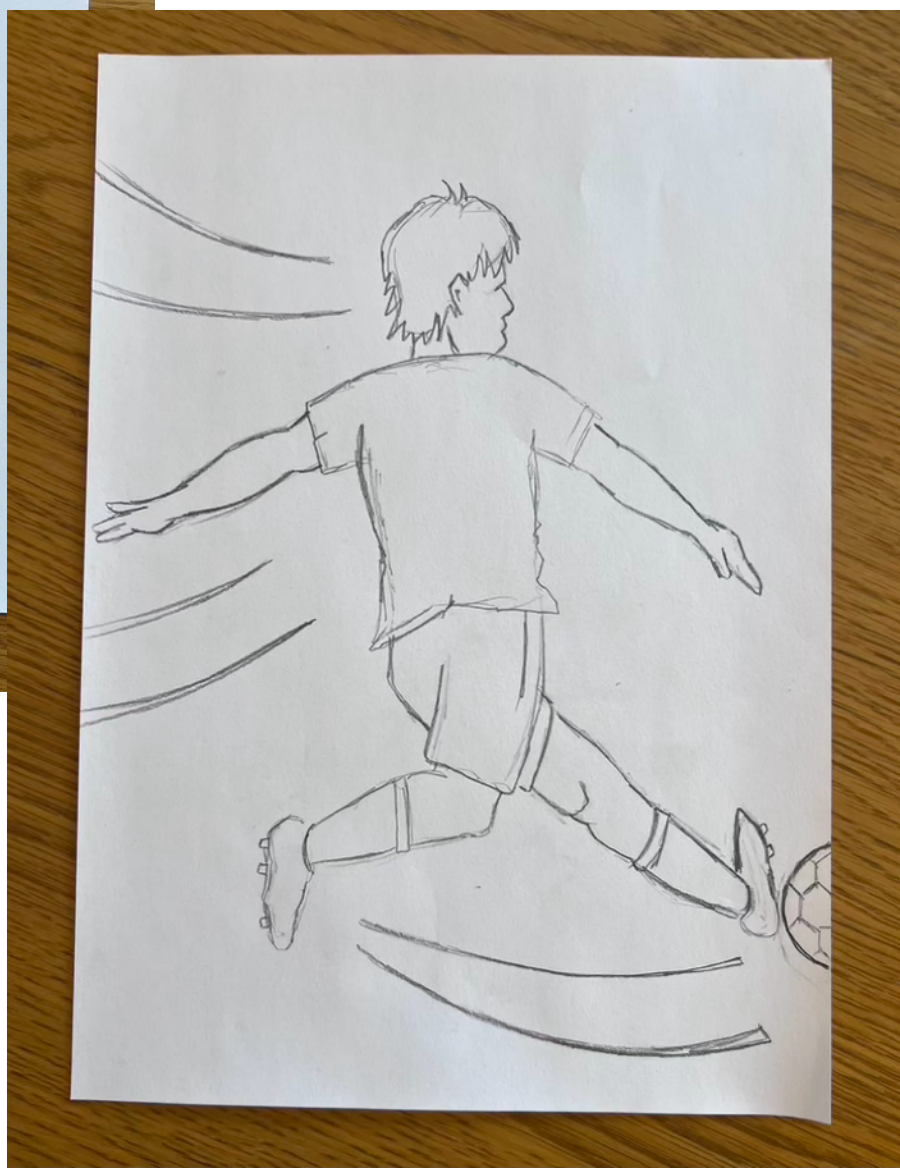

Tools and Materials:

- Paper
- Pencil
- Black Felt Tip

First think what it is you want to draw, dancing, jumping, running - what movement inspires you? We though a footballer would be fun, start sketching out your figure - you might want to look online for a reference or why not ask a friend to pose for you! With some poses there might be some “foreshortening” where something looks shorter because of the angle it is. It is a rough sketch so don’t worry if the lines aren’t right the first time!

We added in some lines of movement to show the speed of running and the power behind the kick - if someone was dancing you might want to do spiral lines or if they were jumping zig zag lines. See what you think fits the movement, when happy with sketch you can outline it with the felt tip to make it bold

There you have it your very own “Movement Drawing”!
