Sugar Skull Bunting

Taking inspiration Mexico's Day of the Dead why not create your own bunting inspired by imagery from it?

Tools and Materials:

- Tissue Paper
- Sellotape
- Scissors
- String

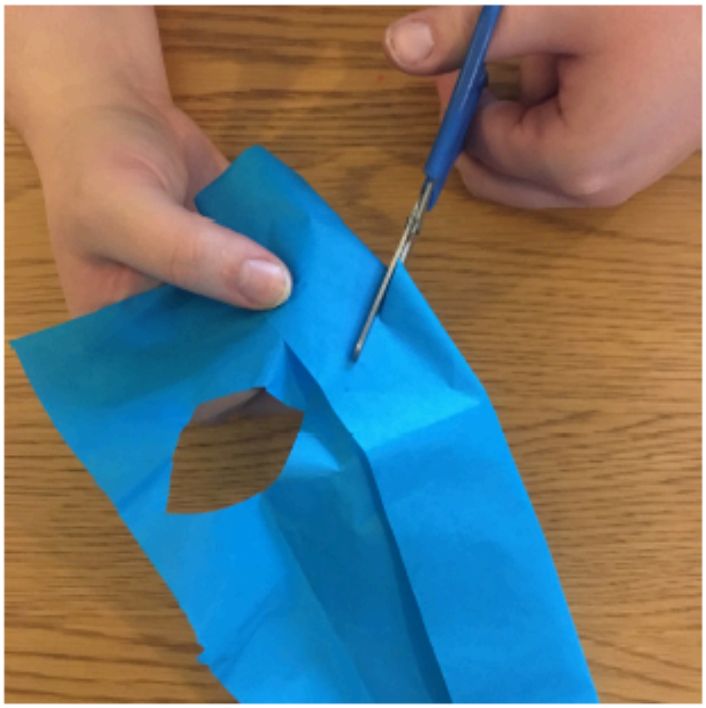

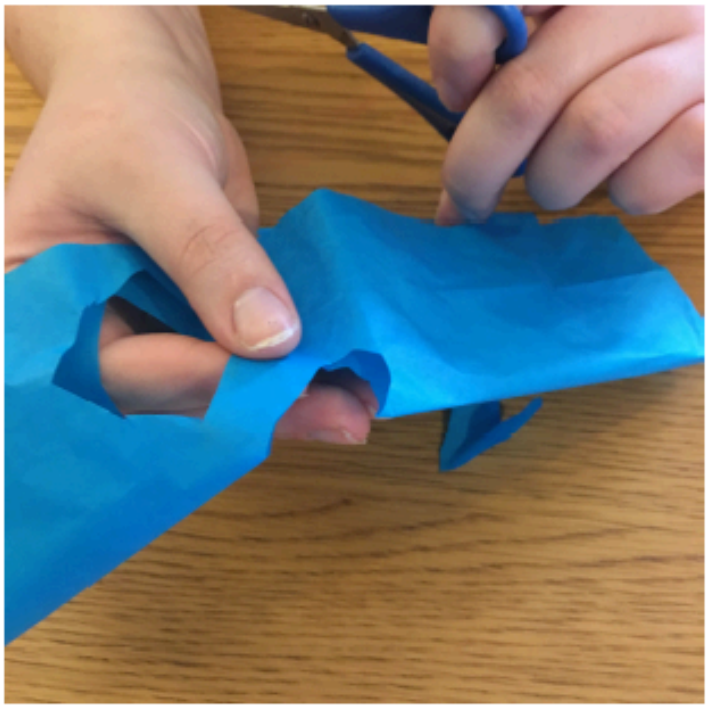

Our tissue paper is in small rectangles - if yours came in a large sheet just cut it down to size roughly half A4 paper size - then you are ready to start! Take one of your bits of paper and fold the edges in to meet in the middle

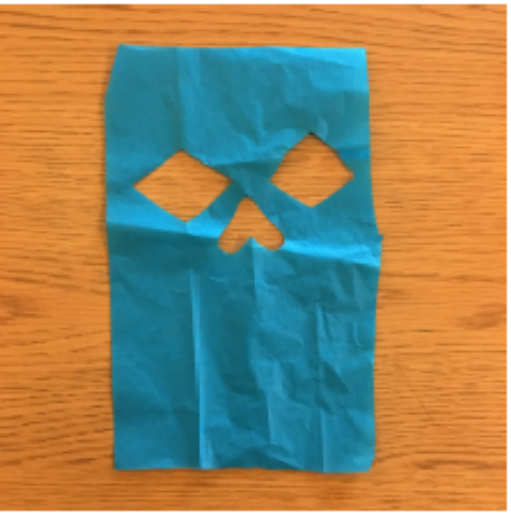

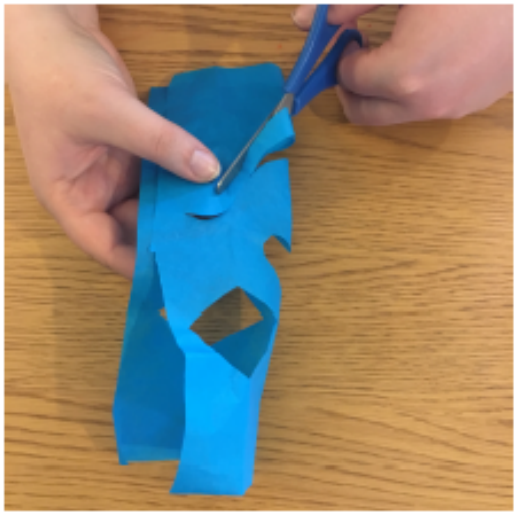

Cut out circles or even heart shapes - this is to create the eyes of your Sugar Skull, fold in half to create the nose

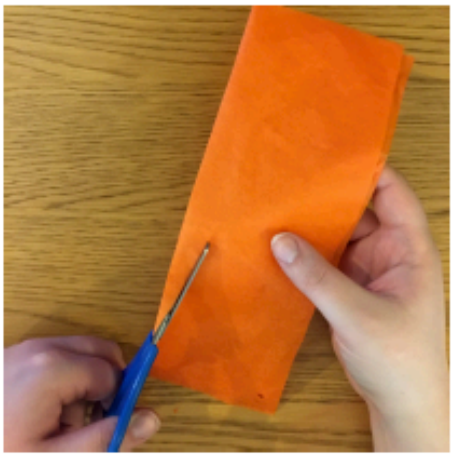

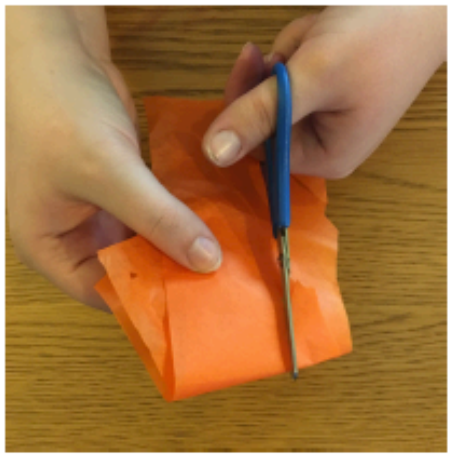

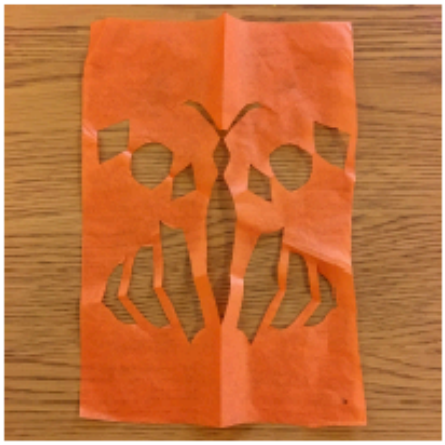

Once you have done that then you can add the mouth by folding it in half again - this project works on using symmetry to create your image

You can add in more shapes to make the skull more decorative like we have - sugar skulls often use hearts, clubs, diamonds and spades like playing cards! The other thing that is important during Day of the Dead is Butterflies so we thought we would create some for our bunting - again fold the paper in different ways to cut the shapes out

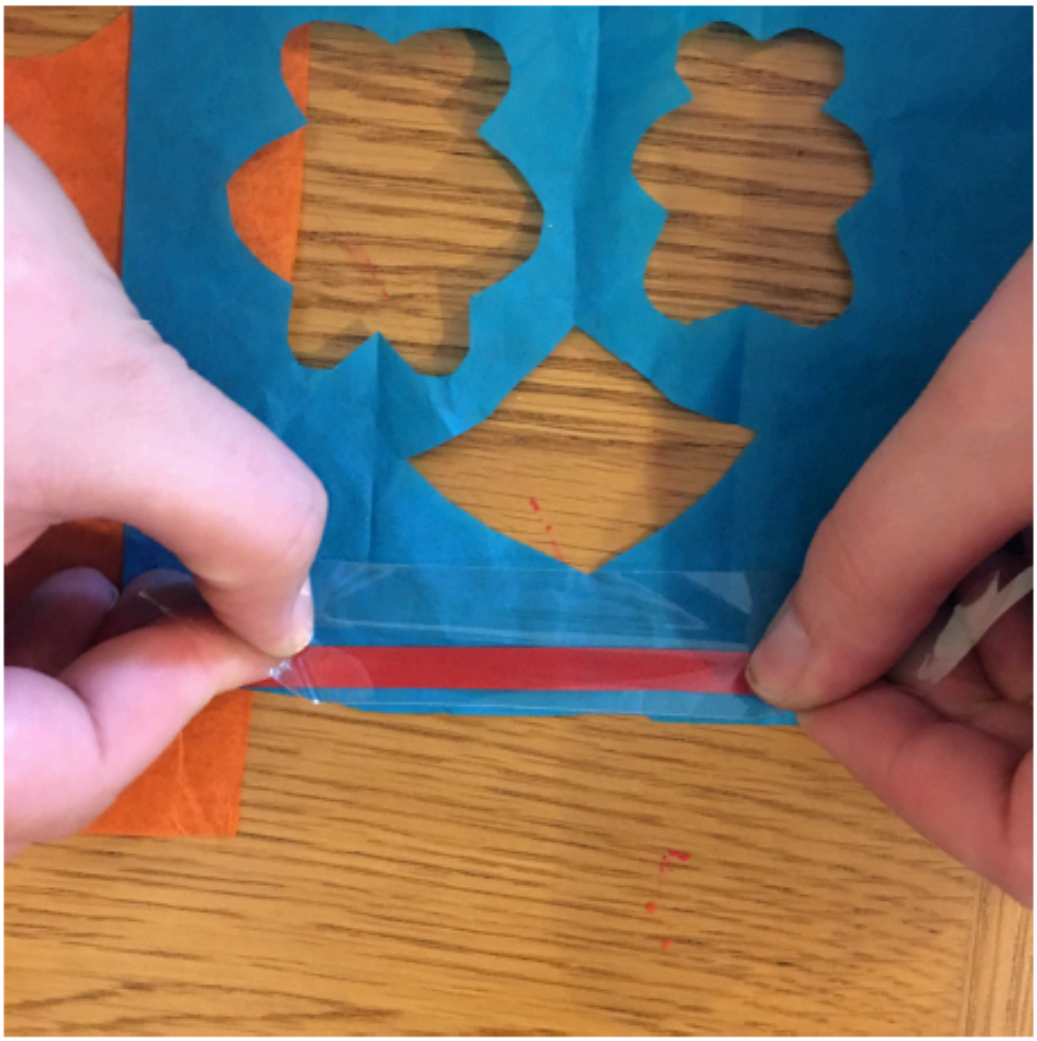

Create more images for your bunting - generally an odd number works best to have a focal point

Now you just need to add string so you can hang them up - lay the string out on the reverse and use some tape to secure it in place like so

And there you have it your own Sugar Skull Bunting!
