

Random Act of Kindness Flower

This teaching pack is dedicated to Robin Mason who helped make another year possible!

In New Zealand they celebrate “Random Act of Kindness Day” on the 1st September we thought it was such a lovely idea we could create a gift for it!

Tools and Materials:

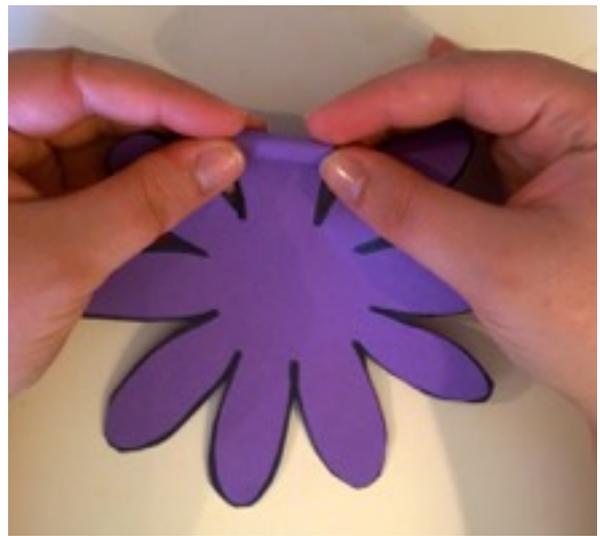

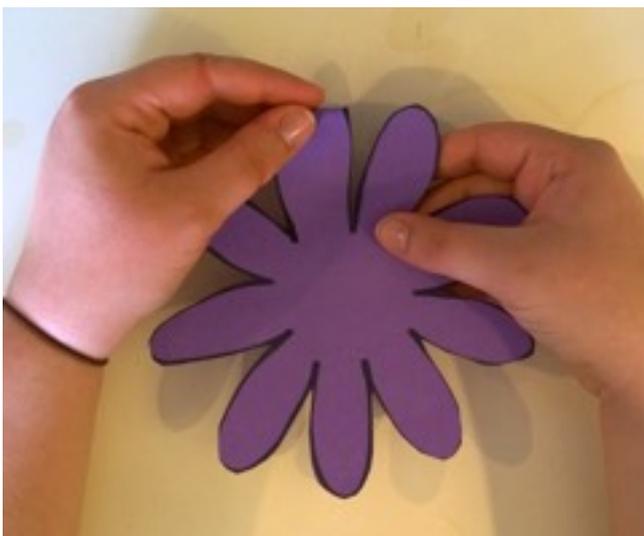

- Coloured Paper
- Scissors
- Sellotape
- Straw (we chose green)
- String
- Black felt tip

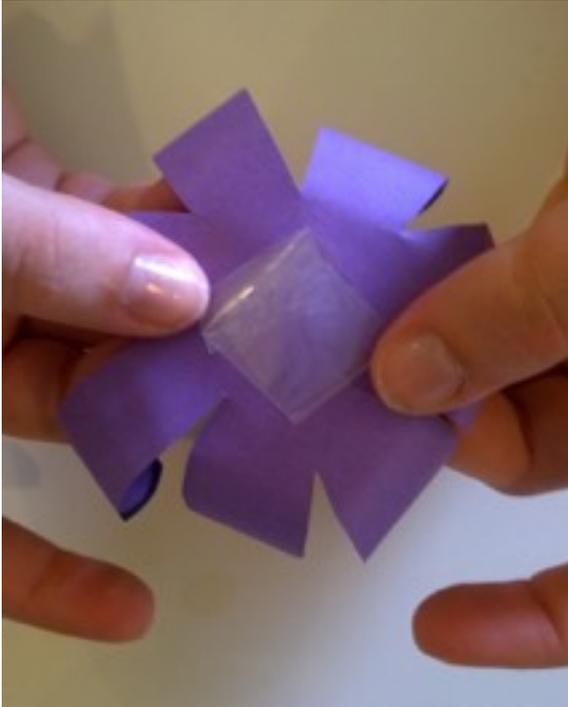

First of all you want to draw out your flowers, we went for a daisy-like design cutting out different sizes of the same shaped flower like so

With your different flowers you can curl up the edges to give them a more 3D effect - start rolling up the edges and you should end up with your flowers looking like this

Once you are happy with your flowers you can start putting them together - fold sellotape back on itself to create a sticky pad - stick the flowers from small to large and you end up with a flower looking like this

Now to decorate your flower - wanted a contrasting bud to brighten it up like so - we chose a circle but you can do whatever centre you would like!

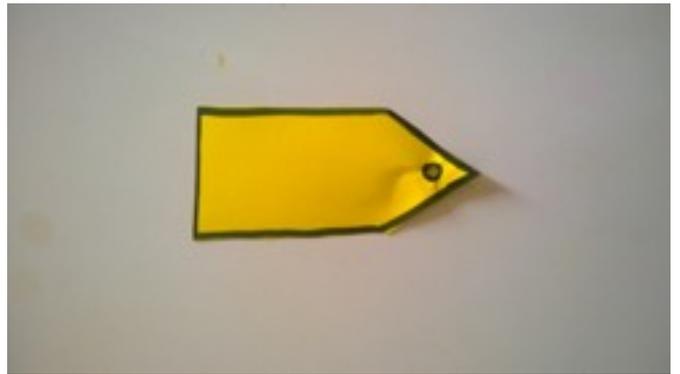

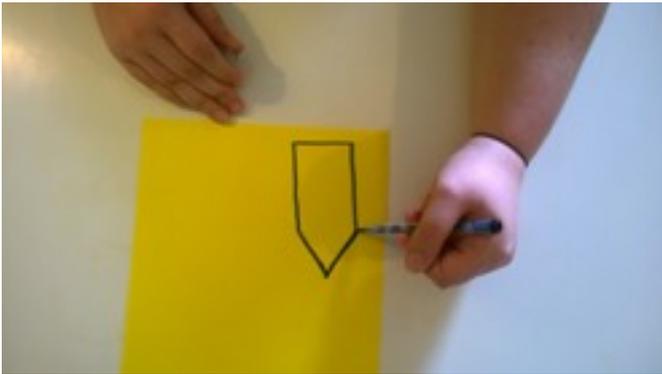

Now to create your stem - take your straw and make two cuts down the side of about a centimetre - this will make it much easier to stick it on to your flower

You can also make a leaf for your stem if you would like - draw out a simple leaf shape - with a tag to secure it, cut out and sellotape on to your stem

Now to create your tag for your “Random Act of Kindness”

Firstly who are you giving the flower to? Mum, Dad, Brother, Friend or..?What would be something kind you could do for that person that they would really appreciate?

Now you can thread your tag on to your flower

And there you have it your own "Random Act of Kindness Flower"

Here is another we made to inspire you
